PROFILE

Writing, attention and reliable follow-through.

I write, edit and build work for readers. My independent practice is supported by experience in clinical placements, research, client design, retail and fulfilment.

Across those settings I learned to keep clear records, listen, explain, revise, prioritise and carry work through. I bring those habits forward without asking earlier roles to define the work I am making now.

WHAT I BRING

Records and verification.

Clear documentation and careful handling of monitored information.

Revision and presentation.

Managing feedback, deadlines and the public form of a piece.

People and communication.

Direct service, stakeholder contact and responsive client work.

Sequence and delivery.

Prioritising concurrent tasks and bringing work through to dispatch.

SELECTED WORK

The Canopy Between Calls Listening.	Three Birmingham questions Starting points for reporting, not conclusions.
Selected visual studies A smaller group of works around silence, dignity, proof and responsibility.	Defensive Archive Starter Good work starts with evidence you can return to.

APPLICATION NOTE

I am applying from independent practice.

I do not yet have three years of professional journalism experience. I would welcome the chance to demonstrate my reporting through a writing test and to develop through close editing.

GOLDLEVEL remains the separate independent practice through which I publish and steward longer-term work.
